

10 great faculty and staff retire from SUU

Representing 187 years of service to SUU ten retiring faculty and staff members were honored recently at a luncheon on campus as part of the commencement exercises. President Bennion, along with other senior administration representatives, was on hand to reminisce and applaud the service of these 10 dedicated and loyal individuals.

Jean Adams ('69 Business Education) began teaching Business Education classes at SUU in 1979. Her accolades are numerous, but the most recent was being named one of three Distinguished Educators for 2003-04. She claims she was very happy to have gone to school here and then was lucky enough to return as a teacher and work with those who had taught her.

Richard Banks has been more-than-efficiently maintaining the facilities of SUU for the past 10 years. His resourcefulness and attention to detail have been a large part of the impressive reputation held by SUU's Plant Operations.

Roger D. Davis ('77 Physical Education) served the University in the Purchasing Office and most recently in the Aquatics Center since joining SUU in 1990. His background in business, and his serious athletic hobbies, made him an asset to the entire campus.

Luck Felstead ('77 Science) retires as the Manager of Campus Utility Services after 33 incredible years at SUU. Luck is both an institution and living legend of SUU. He has been an important part of the team that has made SUU the beautiful, energy-efficient, and smooth-running facility that it is today.

Larry Hatch was one of those quiet centurions at SUU for the past 16 years. He was a reliable custodian, and a fellow employee that everyone could safely count on. Not only that, his co-workers could always look forward to any dealings with Larry, as he was pleasant, capable, and professional.

Steve Heath is an expert on baseball statistics, the history of the terrain of southern Utah, and mathematics. Detail-oriented, focused, and intriguing, Steve taught and nurtured SUU students for 34 remarkable years.

Charles Metten graced SUU with only six years of his talent, engaging personality, initiative, class-room instruction and inspiring sense of humor. He is loved by the campus community including his students, his faculty and staff, and the company of the Utah Shakespearean Festival. And he is well-respected by the Cedar City community as well.

Ashley Paddock has served the campus, its workers, students and visitors through his splendid careful maintenance of the facilities in the Plant Operations

Maureen Robb

Dorothea Smith

Department. After 25 years, he retires as building supervisor.

Anyone who ever bought a ticket to an event at SUU surely enjoyed seeing Maureen Robb's ready smile and experiencing her friendly, optimistic personality. In her 22 years of services to SUU and Iron County, Maureen is one person everyone looked forward to seeing when visiting the campus—and one everyone will miss.

Dorothea Smith served the students and Institution for 28 years. She spoke softly but got the job done with determination and thoroughness. It was evident that she cared greatly about the mission of the University, her co-workers, and the students. Respect for her position and responsibility was reflected daily in the quality of her work.
