

Ten Great Faculty And Staff Retire This Year

Ten of SUU's fine faculty and staff, representing 300 years of service to the University, retired this past academic year. Along with President Steven D. Bennion (See Story on page 2), the following individuals have completed commendable service to SUU.

Joann Bowns,
Professor of Zoology and the institution's senior female faculty, has been serving SUU students since 1965.

Dale Brinkerhoff,
Manager of Construction Services/Plant Operations, has been beautifying SUU since 1973.

Lea Decker,
Office Evaluator in the Registrar's Office started working for SUU in 1989. She was also named Outstanding Female Staff Member this year.

Jacqueline Bulloch,
Administrative Assistant to the president, has been at SUU since 1995.

Georgia and Lark Flanigan, grandson and granddaughter-in-law of Will Flanigan, the pioneer of immaculate groundskeeping of campus, both retired this year, a century after their legendary grandfather.

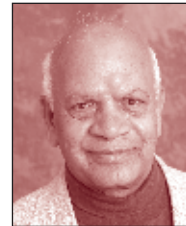

Georgia was a Building Supervisor within Facilities Management and Lark was a Custodial Foreman. They served SUU since 1978 and 1976, respectively.

Wayne Hinton,
Professor of History and nationally-recognized expert on southern Utah history in particular, has been serving students at SUU since 1968.

S.S. Moorthy,
Professor of English, has been teaching students at SUU since 1975. From India, and an expert on American Literature, S.S. brought wonderful diversity and charisma to campus that benefited students and co-workers alike.

Eleen Robinson,
Academic Advisor for the College of Humanities and Social Sciences, has been serving SUU since 1974.
