Required Reading: Text: Corrections: An Introduction by Richard P. Seiter, 2nd edition with student DVD, ISBN 0-13-224905-7

Course Overview:

This course of Introduction to the Corrections Process will present the student with a comprehensive introductory understanding of the corrections system in the U. S. This will include its' origin and evolution, philosophies of corrections, perspectives on sentencing, alternatives to incarceration including community corrections, probation and parole, offender rights and legal issues. It will address adult, juvenile and special needs offenders, corrections specialists, staff and administration as a profession and preview special challenges for the future of corrections.

General Course Objectives

Students will demonstrate comprehensive mastery of concepts described in the course overview, concepts presented in the class, and specific class session objectives by:

1. Successful completion of three exams with an average of 70% or better.
2. Successful completion of chapter quizzes with an average of 70% or better.
3. Successful completion, (grade of C or better), of a five to seven page term paper.
4. Class attendance and participation of 70% or better

Course Expectations:

1. Students are expected to complete assigned readings prior to the date the topic is scheduled for discussion to promote meaningful discussion and class participation.
2. Regular class attendance is expected and is an effective method of learning and preparation for tests. Your tuition reserved you a seat. Attendance will be graded. Past experience has shown that students who do not routinely attend this course perform very poorly on exams and achieve low course grades.
3. Late arrivals and early departures are considered discourteous and disruptive to class continuity. Notice of excused absences (certified illness, family emergency, work emergency) must be given prior to class sessions or exams (in person, voice mail, e-mail, etc.) except in case of emergency. Any questioned absence must be corrected on the roll during the week following the absence.
4. Exams: Three objective exams consisting of multiple choice answers will be administered during the course.
5. Quizzes: There will be 15 true/false, matching and short essay type quizzes based on assigned reading, power point, and videos will be administered. Once a quiz has been discussed in class it will no longer be accepted except in emergencies..
6. Essays, reports, research papers and exams must be taken or submitted on the day scheduled. Unexcused late submissions/exams will be penalized a minimum of 10% and must be completed and submitted within a week of the due date to be accepted.

7. A mandatory visit to a corrections facility will be scheduled during the course. A simple background records check will be performed by corrections officials for security reasons prior to permitting your entrance to the corrections facility. Don't worry, any past record of concern will be discussed confidentially with you prior to the visit and should not keep you out absent unusual circumstances.
8. Term Paper: The report must follow a formal report format with a cover page, be double spaced with 12 point pica type size. The paper must be a cumulative work demonstrating critical analysis and insight of overall corrections philosophies, programs and challenges including a comparison to observed prison/jail characteristics after a mandatory visit to a jail. The paper must demonstrate critical thought regarding your personal philosophy of corrections after comparison of past and present philosophies studied in class. It must include your recommendations for improving corrections for the future.
9. Open class discussion and questions are encouraged. However, "side bars" and private discussions are disruptive and must be controlled. Please respect others right to a proper learning environment.
10. Turn off cell phones. No texting is allowed. You may be dismissed from class for repeated violations. (exception: emergency response personnel)
11. Lap tops may be used exclusively for note taking and power point review during class. All other uses are not allowed and may result in your dismissal from class.
12. E-Mail: Extensive use of e-mail will be used to send assignments and power point notes to students. If you do not have an SUU e-mail account, please call 586-5474 to arrange for one and make sure it is properly given to the registrar for inclusion in class registration for group mailings.

Grading:

Grading will be based on a total of 1000 possible points as follows:

Over 930 points = A, 929 to 900 points = A-, 899 to 870 points =B+, 869 to 830 points = B, etc.

1. Attendance, class participation	5% of final grade	50 points
