

Design and Technical Interview Tips

- Resume
- Portfolio

You will interview with faculty and professional staff members in the program. The faculty will look over your portfolio and ask you some questions about your experience and your process. The portfolio should be content driven not presentation driven. In other words, we are more interested in your creative process; how you communicate your ideas orally and visually, organize the development of your ideas through research and visual aids, manage data and problem-solve.

Your portfolio may include examples of graphic skills, artistic skills, creative skills, drawing, photography, sculpture, painting, drafting or any examples of prior theatrical experience. Students interested in Stage Management should bring copies of their prompt books. Photos of productions are helpful. Documentation of how you communicate your ideas to others is also helpful.
