

Dear Service-Learning Colleagues,

Are you interested in submitting an article to the Michigan Journal of Community Service Learning (MJCSL)? We now seek articles for volume 17 (fall 2010, spring 2011). The first step in the submission process is to send an abstract or precis by December 20th.

The MJCSL is a national, peer-reviewed publication with a circulation of about 1200 (with subscribers all over the world), and includes articles on research, theory, pedagogy, and other issues pertinent to curriculum-based service-learning in higher education, campus-community partnerships, and scholarship of engagement for a faculty and administrator audience.

Please consult submission guidelines for more information - www.umich.edu/~mjcsl/ - as well as review abstracts of past articles the MJCSL has published.

There are no length guidelines for abstracts. Please submit a description that adequately conveys the focus/plan for the article, along with your e-mail address. Invitations to submit an article will be made by e-mail no later than mid-January, with invited articles due the last Monday in March. If you have any questions after reviewing the submission guidelines, please e-mail me.

And please consider subscribing. The cost is only $22 for an individual and $28 for an institution. It would contribute to sustaining the Michigan Journal.

Thank you.

jeff howard

editor, michigan journal of community service learning assistant director for academic and faculty development steans center, depaul university