

Providing for Students with Food Allergies

We understand that trusting your student with food allergies to the care of someone else can cause a fair amount of anxiety. Chartwells, our on-campus food service provider, strives to alleviate this concern for you and your student. They cater to specific dietary needs throughout the year and want every individual to have a good dining experience.

The keys to a successful dining experience are planning and attention to detail. Chartwells dietitians and chefs stay apprised of allergy and medical needs. They also strive to insure that only those who have specific food requirements receive that food. For example, gluten-free pizza is not placed on the main line in order to save it for gluten-free individuals.

In order to insure your student has the best dining experience possible, he/she needs to ask the main line staff about food options that meet his/her specific dietary needs. If the line staff do not know what options are available, your student should ask to speak with someone in the kitchen.

Please note that due to the Department of Health code, outside food cannot be brought in and prepared by Chartwells, and outside food is not allowed to be brought to a function catered by Chartwells. Please do not hesitate to contact Chartwells if you have an questions or concerns regarding this information at 435-865-8654.
