

This triangle reflects the order in which tutors should address issues in papers. Tutors should focus on global issues like ideas, content, and organization first, and then work their way down to issues like grammar, punctuation, and format.

