About the Conductor

Dr. Tobin Stewart is the Symphony Orchestra Director and Assistant Professor of Music at Montana State University where he leads the orchestral studies program, and teaches conducting as well as the music education courses. Tobin's love for music and music education began as a student growing up in Montana. His education and teaching experience then developed in the Midwest at Saint Olaf College and the University of Nebraska- Lincoln, with teaching positions ranging from middle school to college in Nebraska. Tobin now thoroughly enjoys helping new music educators find their groove in the teaching field. Before returning to his home state, Tobin ventured to the Bower School of Music as the Orchestra Director.

Tobin has been invited to speak at regional and national conferences in the areas of conducting and music education. Tobin also remains active as a guest conductor with groups ranging from middle school to professional in the US, Bulgaria, and China. Under his direction, the MSU Symphony has been invited to perform at a NAFME regional conference and a College Orchestra Directors Association national conference. Outside of the music world, Tobin devotes his time to his three kids, Elijah, Samuel, and Lydiana, and his wife Kristen. He loves to cook and enjoys hiking, skiing, and mountain biking in the big sky country.
