SUU'S DEPARTMENT OF THEATRE ARTS & DANCE
PRESENTS SHAKESPEARE'S MAGICAL ROMANTIC COMEDY
*A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM

Southern Utah University, Cedar City, Utah: SUU's Department of Theatre Arts & Dance puts a unique spin on William Shakespeare's classic magical comedy when it sets the Bard's masterpiece A Midsummer Night's Dream in pioneer Utah. This fantastical production will be performed October 2, 3, 4, 6 and 10 in the Adams Shakespearean Theatre on the SUU campus in Cedar City. Curtain time is 7:30pm for all performances. The production is directed by Nathan Smith and opens the 2014-2015 Theatre Arts & Dance Season.

The fairy-filled wilderness of Utah is the central setting for much of this beloved comedy which draws four lovers and a group of amateur theatricals in one wildly mystical evening. However, a magical flower in the hands of the fairy, Puck, sets in motion a calamitous series of situations and the comedic plot thickens for the feuding fairies, mismatched lovers and confused theatricals. SUU's production of A Midsummer Night's Dream is given new life and accessibility by being set in pioneer Utah.

According to Nathan Smith, an SUU theatre major and the show's director, "I want to use A Midsummer Night's Dream to tell a southwestern fairy tale. I think we can blend the pioneer history and heritage of the local community, Native American Mythology and Shakespeare's Classic Text. If broken down to its bare fundamentals, the play is about Hermia, a woman fleeing for her life into a hostile world. I see Athens as a Fort Bridger-type settlement on the edge of the desert wilderness. When we say forest, we mean desert. Thus Hermia and Lysander's flight is quite dangerous, even without the presence of Oberon and Titania, fairy spirits, which draw heavily on Native American lore, with Puck being a stand in for Coyote, the classic trickster. I should stress that these spirits are part of the lore, but we don't need to make them Native American. Dr. Wynne Summers, of the English Department, an expert in Native American Mythology and Literature, has agreed to help as a source of information for designers and actors, and keep the production as authentic and respectful to the Native American Community as possible."

Collaborating with Smith on developing his vision are set designer Brian Jude Beacom, costume designer Erika Anderson, lighting designer J.D. Sargeant and sound designer Ryan Turpin. Katie Cable Hyer serves as stage manager, with assistance from Hannah Fontes and Kristine Norby. Beth Snarr is the show's choreographer.

The cast features Amber James (Hermia), Halie Merrill (Helena), Trevor Messenger (Lysander) and Nik Mikkelsen (Demetrius) as the lovers while Lizzy Anderson (Philostrate), Jordyn Cardwell (Hippolyta) Michael Demasi (Theseus) and Andrew Morrison (Egeus) make up the rest of the Athenian court. The talent-challenged theatricals are played by Jesse Atkinson (Robin Starveling), Kade Cox (Tom Snout), Alex Greig (Peter Quince), Justin Stockett (Snug), Alec TerBerg (Nick Bottom) and Robby Wilson (Francis Flute). Heading up the mystical fairies are Sceri Ivers (Puck), Luke Johnson (Oberon) and Selena Price (Titania) with Abigail Larsen (Cobweb), Jess Phillips (Moth), Carly Skankey (Fairy), Natalie Solomon (Peaseblossom) and Jane Wright (Mustardseed).

Laugh at the foibles of fairies and lovers by attending this Utah-set production of the timeless comedy. Ticket prices are: $10 Adult General Admission; $5 Youth and free for Faculty/Staff and SUU students with a valid ID. Faculty and staff are entitled to bring one guest. The CPVA Flex Pass offers six admissions to any theatre, dance or music event and can be used for a single entrance to a production or can be used to admit six people to one event. The pass can be used in any multiples for CPVA ticketed events. The cost of the Flex Pass is $40 per pass (a $65 value).
